

Acknowledgements

This camp would not have happened without the enormous contributions of many people.

First off, I would like to thank Natalie Chappell, my planning partner and spiritual collaborator. Without her seeing the vision, her many curriculum inputs and craft ideas, and most importantly prayer, this camp would not have been possible.

I would also like to thank Lidene Muller, who contributed to the gospel scavenger hunt and compiled many ideas of beach fun and team games that we were unable to use when we moved online. Thank you for always giving cheerfully!

My thanks also go out to Amy Bramley, a people connector, who brought with her experience from Kids in the Park and recruited over 30 volunteers for the beach camp in a matter of hours. Talk about efficiency and experience!

Thanks also go out to Jemima Callaghan for the gospel bead bracelet craft and Laura Cullins who contributed curriculum content on trust.

My deepest thanks go to the summer intern staff, the “Formidable Four”: Alice O’Donnell, Daniel Cavalcante Chung, Emily Wong, and Katherine Sy-Siong, who pulled the online camp through to the finishing line.

It has been an incredible experience and an absolute pleasure working with each one of you in the last 2 weeks. I admire your talents, drive, passion, willingness and desire to serve.

You have all put in countless hours in making online camp happen and in a very short period of time. From being faced with a steep learning curve in recording with a green screen and its lighting needs, a first for DBICC; to directing and long nights editing all the videos for livestream and closing videos; to writing instructions and producing videos for the crafts and activities; and collating the beautiful Parent Guide which I could not have done a better job of myself, I am deeply honoured to have worked with you all, and I could not have asked for a better or more fun team!

My heartfelt thanks also go out to the church staff: Evelyn Robinson, Linda Harrod, and Martin Wray for your guidance on a myriad of issues. From weather considerations, legal guidance, camp materials procurement, copyright considerations, church communications, Kidz Kamp registration and website updates ... all the behind-the-scenes work and decisions that cannot be taken for granted for camp to run successfully!

I’d also like to thank Pastor Danny Cullins, for conceiving the idea of Kidz Kamp for kids to experience and know Jesus during the summer. Thank you for giving me this opportunity to thrive amidst the challenges and for the support and guidance in producing this camp. This was a project beyond what I had imagined with the complexity of Covid-19 and certainly beyond what I had imagined my own involvement to be. God had other plans. Thank you for your trust in me.

I cannot have done this without the love and support of my husband Josh Boyle and our children. Thank you for looking after things at home while I took on this responsibility and the many hours of working from home and at the church office in the last days.

Not only is it a challenge to put together an in-person camp for kids on the beach for the first time under normal circumstances, but it's another level when you are planning 3-camps-in-one with at least 2 contingency plans under the uncertainty and tightening of Covid-19 social gathering restrictions and the rising number of local infections daily. Thanks to Natalie who had the foresight to envision an online camp, and then it was all about converting a physical camp to an online one with incredible intensity.

All thanks be to God, who made it happen. I am in awe at the work of His hands, through me and those around me. God was the one who deposited the words of the camp messages to us. He was the one who gave the idea of using a digital backdrop, and so raised the production value. He breathed His life into this camp, and speaks His words to our camp children and families specific for this season. He loves to show how great of a God He is - and how He is able, not how we are able - taking the little that we give to Him and multiplying it for His kingdom. If we look up to see, He shows the splendour of His glory and moves beyond our expectations.

I pray this camp moves and blesses you. God is moving and is at work amongst you.

Blessings
in Christ,
Priscilla Boyle
